

EU sanctions whistleblower tool

Published: 14.03.2022.

The European Commission has rolled out a whistleblower tool to facilitate the reporting of possible sanctions violations. This is a secure online platform, which whistleblowers from around the world can use to anonymously report past, current, or planned EU sanctions violations, including on assets that should be frozen under EU sanctions.

Sharing of information about EU sanctions violations can contribute to the success of ongoing investigations in EU Member States and increase the effectiveness of EU sanctions.

If you are aware of possible violations of any EU sanctions, you can bring this to the European Commission's attention by voluntarily providing information. This information can relate, for example, to facts concerning sanctions violations, their circumstances and the individuals, companies and third countries involved.
